

The Historiographer

of the Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut

December
1961

No.
38

Brethren,

With an offering of $100 each from thirty, or $50 each from sixty, or $30 each from one hundred Individuals or Congregations, I can build two Churches in Middlesex County, Connecticut. For five years, without any charge to the Church, I have laboured as a Missionary within an area of twenty miles, where there is but one, and that an old and small building for our worship, in a very obscure and inaccessible position. Over this area of twenty miles south of Middletown, are scattered many of our Communion, and many more who are inclined to, and would, embrace it, if they could enjoy steadily the means of grace. This I know from actual experience and observation. Two eligible pieces of ground have been offered to me, and there are many who will give labour, though they cannot give money. They are in general poor; but is it not to the poor that we ought to preach the Gospel? Connecticut is the nursery of Churchmen—of Church Ministers—of Church principles. Bishop Hobart well knew the value of Connecticut Churchmen in his Diocese. Connecticut Clergymen are scattered over the face of our whole country, and are chiefly sons of poor men. As to Church-principles in Connecticut, I need say nothing; for from the time of the first planting by the venerable Mr. Johnson to the present day, they have been with great unanimity sustained. Will you not then give me your help, and that speedily, that the work may go forward this summer? I have conferred with Mr. Appohn, and am daily expecting his estimates. The plans I already have. Any sums, however small, which you may be disposed to collect or bestow, will be lodged by the subscriber in the Middlesex County Bank, and as fast as possible expended for this best of all charities; but no debts which cannot promptly be met, must be contracted.

Samuel Farmer Jarvis.

Middletown, April 12th, 1847.

BISHOP SEABURY'S

Communion-Office,

Reprinted in Fac-simile.

With an Historical Sketch and Notes

BY THE

REV. SAMUEL HART, M.A.

Seabury Professor in Trinity College, Hartford.

---

SECOND EDITION, REVISED.

---

NEW YORK:

T. WHITTAKER, No. 2 BIBLE HOUSE.

1883.

THE

Communion-Office,

OR ORDER

FOR THE ADMINISTRATION

OF THE

HOLY EUCHARIST

OR

SUPPER OF THE LORD.

WITH

PRIVATE DEVOTIONS.

Recommended to the Episcopal Congregations in Connecticut,

By the Right Reverend

BISHOP SEABURY.

NEW - LONDON:

Printed by T. GREEN, M,DCC,LXXXVI.

Communion-Office.

¶ The Exhortation.

DEARLY beloved in the Lord, ye that mind to come to the holy Communion of the body and blood of our Saviour Christ, must consider how St. Paul exhorteth all persons diligently to try and examine themselves, before they presume to eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. For as the benefit is great, if with a true penitent heart and lively faith we receive that holy sacrament, (for then we spiritually eat the flesh of Christ, and drink his blood; then we dwell in Christ, and Christ in us; we are one with Christ, and Christ with us;) so is the danger great, if we receive the same unworthily, not considering the Lord's body; for then we are guilty of the body and blood of Christ our Saviour; we kindle God's wrath against us, and bring his judgments upon us. Judge therefore yourselves, brethren, that ye be not judged of the Lord; repent you truly for your sins past; have

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2024

have a lively and stedfast faith in Christ our Saviour; amend your lives, and be in perfect charity with all men: so shall ye be meet partakers of those holy mysteries. And, above all things, ye must give most humble and hearty thanks to God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, for the redemption of the world, by the death and passion of our Saviour Christ, both God and man, who did humble himself even to the death upon the cross for us miserable sinners, who lay in darkness and the shadow of death, that he might make us the children of God, and exalt us to everlasting life. And to the end that we should always remember the exceeding great love of our Master and only Saviour Jesus Christ thus dying for us, and the innumerable benefits which by his precious blood-shedding he hath obtained to us, he hath instituted and ordained holy mysteries, as pledges of his love, and for a continual remembrance of his death, to our great and endless comfort. To him, therefore, with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, let us give (as we are most bounden) continual thanks, submitting ourselves wholly to his holy will and pleasure, and studying to serve him in true holiness and righteousness all the days of our life. Amen.

¶ Then

¶ Then the Priest, or Deacon, shall say,

Let us present our offerings to the Lord with reverence and Godly fear.

¶ Then the Priest shall begin the offertory, saying one or more of these sentences following, as be thinketh most convenient in his discretion.

IN procefs of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord. And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock, and of the fat thereof. And the Lord had respect unto Abel, and to his offering: but unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect. Gen. iv. 3, 4.

Speak unto the children of Israel, that they bring me an offering: of every man that giveth it willingly with his heart, ye shall take my offering. Exod. xxv. 2.

Ye shall not appear before the Lord empty. Every man shall give as he is able, according to the blessing of the Lord your God which he hath given you. Deut. xvi. 16, 17.

Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name: bring an offering, and come into his courts. Psal. xcvi. 8.

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal. Mat. vi. 19, 20.

Not every one that faith unto me, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven: but he that doth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Matth. vii. 21.

Jesus sat over against the treasury, and beheld how the people cast money into it: and many that were rich cast in much. And there came a certain poor widow, and she threw in two mites, which make a farthing. And he called unto him his disciples, and saith unto them, Verily I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast more in, than all they which have cast into the treasury. For all they did cast in of their abundance: but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living. Mark xii. 41, 42, 43, 44.

Who goeth a warfare at any time of his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock? 1 Cor. ix. 7.

If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great matter if we should reap your carnal things? 1 Cor. ix. 11.

Do ye not know, that they which minister about holy things, live of the sacrifice? and they which wait at the altar, are partakers with with the altar? Even so hath the Lord ordained, that they who preach the gospel, should live of the gospel. 1 Cor. ix. 13, 14.

He that soweth sparingly, shall reap also sparingly: and he who soweth bountifully, shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver. 2 Cor. ix. 6, 7.

Let him that is taught in the word, communicate unto him that teacheth, in all good things. Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. Gal. vi. 6, 7.

Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy: That they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life. 1 Tim. vi. 17, 18, 19.

God is not unrighteous, to forget your work and labour of love, which ye have shewed toward his name, in that ye have ministered to the faints, and do minister. Heb. vi. 10.

To do good, and to communicate, forget not; for with such sacrifices God is well pleased. Heb. xiii. 16.

¶ While the Priest distinctly pronounceth some or all of these sentences for the offertory, the Deacon, or (if no such be present) some other fit person, shall receive the devotions of the people, in a bason provided for that purpose. And when all have offered, he shall reverently bring, and deliver it to the Priest; who shall humbly present it before the Lord, and set it upon the holy table, saying,

BLESSED be thou, O Lord God, for ever and ever. Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine: thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all: both riches and honour come of thee, and of thine own do we give unto thee. Amen.

¶ And the Priest shall then offer up, and place the bread and wine prepared for the sacrament upon the Lord's table, putting a little pure water into the cup: and shall say,

The Lord be with you.

Answer. And with thy spirit.

Priest. Lift up your hearts.

Answer. We lift them up unto the Lord.

Priest. Let us give thanks unto our Lord God.

Answer. It is meet and right so to do.

Priest. It is very meet, right, and our bounden bounden duty, that we should at all times, and in all places, give thanks unto thee O Lord, * [holy Father,] Almighty, everlasting God.

* These words (holy Father) must be omitted on Trinity-Sunday.

¶ Here shall follow the proper preface, according to the time, if there be any especially appointed; or else immediately shall follow,

Therefore with angels and archangels, &c.

¶ Proper Prefaces.

¶ Upon Christmas-day, and seven days after.

BECAUSE thou didst give Jesus Christ thine only Son, to be born * [as on this day] for us, who, by the operation of the Holy Ghost, was made very man, of the substance of the blessed Virgin Mary his mother, and that without spot of sin, to make us clean from all sin. Therefore with angels, &c.

* During the seven days after Christmas, say, as at this time.

¶ Upon Easter-day, and seven days after.

BUT chiefly are we bound to praise thee, for the glorious resurrection of thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord: For he is the very Paschal Lamb, which was offered for us, and hath taken away the sin of the world; who by his death hath destroyed death, and by his rising to life again, hath restored to us everlasting life. Therefore with angels, &c.

B

¶ Upon

¶ Upon Ascension-day, and seven days after.

THROUGH thy most dearly beloved Son, Jesus Christ our Lord; who, after his most glorious resurrection, manifestly appeared to all his apostles, and in their fight ascended up into heaven, to prepare a place for us; that where he is, thither might we also ascend, and reign with him in glory. Therefore with angels and archangels, &c.

¶ Upon Whit Sunday, and six days after.

THROUGH Jesus Christ our Lord; according to whose most true promise the Holy Ghost came down * [as on this day] from heaven, with a sudden great sound, as it had been a mighty wind, in the likeness of fiery tongues, lighting upon the apostles, to teach them, and to lead them to all truth, giving them both the gift of divers languages, and also boldness with fervent zeal constantly to preach the gospel unto all nations, whereby we are brought out of darkness and error into the clear light and true knowledge of thee, and of thy Son Jesus Christ. Therefore with angels, &c.

* During the six days after Whit Sunday, say, as at this time.

¶ Upon the feast of Trinity only.

WHOM art one God, one Lord; not one only person, but three persons in one substance. For that which we believe of the glory glory of the Father, the same we believe of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, without any difference or inequality. Therefore with angels, &c.

¶ After which prefaces shall follow immediately this doxology.

THEREFORE with angels and archangels, and with all the company of heaven, we laud and magnify thy glorious name, evermore praising thee, and saying, Holy, holy, holy Lord God of hosts, heaven and earth are full of thy glory. Glory be to thee, O Lord most high. Amen.

¶ Then the Priest standing at such a part of the holy table as be may with the most ease and decency use both his hands, and shall say the prayer of consecration, as followeth.

ALL glory be to thee, Almighty God, our heavenly Father, for that thou of thy tender mercy didst give thy only Son Jesus Christ to suffer death upon the cross for our redemption; who made there (by his one oblation of himself once offered) a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction, for the sins of the whole world; and did institute, and in his holy gospel command us to continue a perpetual memory of that his precious death and sacrifice until his coming again. For, in the night that he was betrayed, (a) he took bread; and when he had given thanks,

(a) Here the Priest is to take the paten into his hands:

thanks, (b) he brake it, and gave to his disciples, saying, Take, eat, (c) THIS IS MY BODY, which is given for you: DO this in remembrance of me. Likewise after supper (d) he took the cup; and when he had given thanks, he gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of this, for (e) THIS IS MY BLOOD, of the new testament, which is shed for you, and for many, for the remission of sins: DO this as oft as ye shall drink it in remembrance of me.

(b) And here to break the bread :

(c) And here to lay his hands upon all the bread.

(d) Here he is to take the cup in to his hand :

(e) And here to lay his hand upon every vessel (be it chalice or flagon) in which there is any wine to be consecrated.

The Oblation.

WHEREFORE, O Lord, and heavenly Father, according to the institution of thy dearly beloved Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, we thy humble servants do celebrate and make here before thy divine majesty, with these thy holy gifts, WHICH WE NOW OFFER UNTO THEE, the memorial thy Son hath commanded us to make; having in remembrance his blessed passion, and precious death, his mighty resurrection, and glorious ascension; rendering unto thee most hearty thanks for the innumerable benefits procured unto us by the same. And we most humbly beseech thee, O merciful Father, to hear us, and of thy almighty goodness ness vouchsafe to bless and sanctify, with thy word and Holy Spirit, these thy gifts and creatures of bread and wine, that they may become the body and blood of thy most dearly beloved Son. And we earnestly desire thy fatherly goodness, mercifully to accept this our sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving, most humbly beseeching thee to grant, that by the merits and death of thy Son Jesus Christ, and through faith in his blood, we (and all thy whole church) may obtain remission of our sins, and all other benefits of his passion. And here we offer and present unto thee, O Lord, ourselves, our souls and bodies, to be a reasonable, holy and lively sacrifice unto thee, humbly beseeching thee, that we and all others who shall be partakers of this holy Communion, may worthily receive the most precious body and blood of thy Son Jesus Christ, be filled with thy grace and heavenly benediction, and made one body with him, that he may dwell in them and they in him. And although we are unworthy, through our manifold sins, to offer unto thee any sacrifice; yet we beseech thee to accept this our bounden duty and service, not weighing our merits, but pardoning our offences, through Jesus Christ our Lord: by whom, and with whom, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, all honour and glory be unto thee, O Father Almighty, world without end. Amen.

¶ Let us pray for the whole State of Christ's Church.

ALmighty and everliving God, who by thy holy Apostle hast taught us to make prayers and supplications, and to give thanks for all men; We humbly beseech thee most mercifully to accept our alms and oblations, and to receive these our prayers, which we offer unto thy divine majesty; beseeching thee to inspire continually the universal church with the spirit of truth, unity and concord; and grant that all they who do confess thy holy name, may agree in the truth of thy holy word and live in unity and godly love. We beseech thee also to save and defend all Christian Kings, Princes, and Governors; and grant that they, and all who are in authority, may truly and impartially minister justice to the punishment of wickedness and vice, and to the maintenance of thy true religion and virtue. Give grace, O heavenly Father, to all Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, that they may both by their life and doctrine set forth thy true and lively word, and rightly and duly administer thy holy sacraments: and to all thy people give thy heavenly grace, that with meek heart, and due reverence, they may hear and receive thy holy word, truly serving thee in holiness and righteousness all the days of their life. And we commend especially to thy merciful goodness the congregation here assembled assembled in thy name, to celebrate the commemoration of the most precious death and sacrifice of thy Son and our Saviour Jesus Christ. And we most humbly beseech thee of thy goodness, O Lord, to comfort and succour all those who in this transitory life are in trouble, sorrow, need, sickness, or any other adversity. And we also bless thy holy name for all thy servants, who, having finished their course in faith, do now rest from their labours: yielding unto thee most high praise and hearty thanks, for the wonderful goodness and virtue declared in all thy saints, who have been the choice vessels of thy grace, and the lights of the world in their several generations: most humbly beseeching thee to give us grace to follow the example of their steadfastness in thy faith, and obedience to thy holy commandments, that at the day of the general resurrection, we, and all they who are of the mystical body of thy Son, may be set on his right hand, and hear that his most joyful voice, Come, ye blessed of my father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. Grant this, O Father, for Jesus Christ's sake, our only Mediator and Advocate. Amen.

As our Saviour Christ hath commanded and taught us, we are bold to say,

OUR Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest say to them that come to receive the holy communion, this invitation.

YE, that do truly and earnestly repent you of your sins, and are in love and charity with your neighbours, and intend to lead a new life, following the commandments of God, and walking from henceforth in his holy ways: Draw near with faith and take this holy sacrament to your comfort; and make your humble confession to Almighty God.

¶ Then shall this general confession be made, by the people, along with the Priest; all humbly kneeling upon their knees.

ALMIGHTY God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, maker of all things, judge of all men; We acknowledge and bewail our manifold sins and wickedness, which we from time to time most grievously have committed, by thought, word, and deed, against thy divine Majesty; provoking most justly thy wrath and indignation against us. We do earnestly repent, and are heartily sorry for these our misdoings; the remembrance of them is grievous unto us; the burden of them is is intolerable. Have mercy upon us, have mercy upon us, most merciful Father; for thy Son our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, forgive us all that is past; and grant, that we may ever hereafter serve and please thee, in newness of life, to the honour and glory of thy name, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest, or the Bishop, (being present,) stand up, and turning himself to the people, pronounce the absolution as followeth.

ALMIGHTY God our heavenly Father, who, of his great mercy, hath promised forgiveness of sins to all them that with hearty repentance and true faith turn unto him; Have mercy upon you; pardon and deliver you from all your sins; confirm and strengthen you in all goodness; and bring you to everlasting life, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

Hear what comfortable words our Saviour Christ saith unto all that truly turn to him:

COME unto me, all ye that labour, and are heavy laden, and I will refresh you. Matth. ix. 28.

Private ejaculation.

Refresh, O Lord, thy servant wearied with the burden of sin.

God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in in him, should not perish, but have everlasting life. John iii. 16.

Private ejaculation.

Lord, I believe in thy Son Jesus Christ, and let this faith purify me from all iniquity.

Hear also what St. Paul saith.

This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. 1 Tim. i. 15.

Private ejaculation.

I embrace with all thankfulness that salvation that Jesus has brought into the world.

Hear also what St. John saith.

If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous: and he is the propitiation for our sins. 1 John ii. 1, 2.

Private ejaculation:

Intercede for me, O blessed Jesus! that my sins may be pardoned, through the merits of thy death.

¶ Then shall the Priest, turning him to the altar, kneel down, and say, in the name of all them that shall communicate, this collect of humble access to the holy communion, as followeth.

WE do not presume to come to this thy holy table, O merciful Lord, trusting in our own righteousness, but in thy manifold and great mercies. We are not worthy so much as to gather up the crumbs under thy table: But thou art the same Lord, whose property is always to have mercy. Grant us therefore, gracious Lord, so to eat the flesh of of thy dear Son Jesus Christ, and to drink his blood, that our sinful bodies may be made clean by his most sacred body, and our souls washed through his most precious blood, and that we may evermore dwell in him, and he in us. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Bishop, if he be present, or else the Priest that celebrateth, first receive the communion in both kinds himself, and next deliver it to other Bishops, Presbyters, and Deacons, (if there be any present,) and after to the people in due order, all humbly kneeling. And when he receiveth himself, or delivereth the Sacrament of the body of Christ to others, he shall say,

THE body of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was given for thee, preserve thy soul and body unto everlasting life.

¶ Here the person receiving shall say, Amen.

¶ And when the Priest receiveth the cup himself, or delivereth it to others, he shall say,

THE blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was shed for thee, preserve thy soul and body unto everlasting life.

¶ Here the person receiving shall say, Amen.

¶ If the consecrated bread or wine be all spent before all have communicated, the Priest is to consecrate more, according to the form before prescribed, beginning at the words, All glory glory be to thee, &c. and ending with the words, that they may become the body and blood of thy most dearly beloved Son.

¶ When all have communicated, he that celebrates shall go to the Lord's table, and cover with a fair linen cloth that which remaineth of the consecrated elements, and then say,
Having

Private Devotions for the Altar.

BLESSED Jesus! Saviour of the world! who hast called me to the participation of these thy holy mysteries, accept my humble approach to thy sacred table, increase my faith, settle my devotion, fix my contemplation on thy powerful mercy; and while with my mouth I receive the sacred symbols of thy body and blood, may they be the means of heavenly nourishment to prepare my body and soul for that everlasting life which thou hast purchased by thy merits, and promised to bestow on all who believe in and depend on thee.
Amen.

Prayer to God.

O Gracious and merciful God, Thou supreme Being, Father, Word and Holy Ghost, look down from heaven, the throne of thy essential glory, upon me thy unworthy creature, with the eyes of thy covenanted mercy and compassion: O Lord my God, I disclaim all merit, I renounce all righteousness of my own, either inherent in my nature, or acquired by my own industry: And I fly for refuge, for pardon and satisfaction, to the righteousness of thy Christ: For his sake, for the sake of the blessed Jesus, the Son of thy covenanted love, whom Thou hast set forth to be a propitiation for fallen man, and in whom alone Thou art well pleased, have mercy

Having now received the precious body and blood of Christ, let us give thanks to our Lord God, who hath graciously vouchsafed to admit us to the participation of his holy mysteries; and let us beg of him grace to perform our vows, and to persevere in our good resolutions; that being made holy, we may obtain everlasting life, through the merits of the all-sufficient sacrifice of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Then

mercy upon me, receive my prayers, pardon my infirmities, strengthen my weak resolutions, guide my steps to thy holy altar, and there feed me with the meat which perisheth not, but endureth to everlasting life.
Amen.

After Receiving.

BLESSED Jesus! Thou hast now blest me with the food of thy own merciful institution, and, in humble faith of thy gracious promise, I have bowed myself at thy table, to receive the precious pledges of thy dying love; O may thy presence go with me from this happy participation of thy goodness, that when I return to the necessary labours and employments of this miserable world, I may be enabled by thy grace to obey thy commandments, and conducted by thy watchful care through all trials, till, according to thy divine wisdom, I have finished my course here with joy, that so I may depart out of this world in peace, and in a steadfast dependence on thy merits, O blessed Jesus, in whose prevailing words I shut up all my imperfect wishes, saying,
Our Father, &c. Amen.

D

¶ Then the Priest shall say this collect of thanksgiving, as followeth.

ALmighty and everliving God, we most heartily thank thee, for that thou dost vouchsafe to feed us, who have duly received these holy mysteries, with the spiritual food of the most precious body and blood of thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ; and doth assure us thereby of thy favour and goodness towards us, and that we are very members incorporate in the mystical body of thy Son, which is the blessed company of all faithful people, and are also heirs through hope of thy everlasting kingdom, by the merits of his most precious death and passion. We now most humbly beseech thee, O heavenly Father, so to assist us with thy grace and Holy Spirit, that we may continue in that holy communion and fellowship, and do all such good works as thou hast commanded us to walk in, through Jesus Christ our Lord; to whom, with Thee and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory, world without end. Amen.

¶ Then shall be said or sung, Gloria in excelsis, as followeth.

GLORY be to God on high, and in earth peace, good will towards men. We praise thee, we bless thee, we worship thee, we glorify thee, we give thanks to thee, for thy great glory, O Lord God, heavenly King, God

God the Father Almighty; and to Thee, O God, the only begotten Son Jesu Christ; and to Thee, O God, the Holy Ghost.

O Lord, the only begotten Son Jesu Christ; O Lord God, Lamb of God, Son of the Father, who takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us. Thou that takest away the sins of the world, receive our prayer. Thou that fittest at the right hand of God the Father, have mercy upon us.

For thou only art holy, thou only art the Lord, thou only, O Christ, with the Holy Ghost, art most high in the glory of God the Father. Amen.

¶ Then the Priest, or Bishop, if he be present, shall let them depart, with this blessing.

THE peace of God, which passeth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God, and of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord: and the blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost be amongst you, and remain with you always. Amen.

T H E E N D.

HISTORICAL SKETCH AND NOTES.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

---

On the twenty-third Sunday after Trinity, November 14th, 1784, at the chapel in Bishop Skinner's house in Longacre, Aberdeen, "in the presence of a considerable number of respectable clergymen, and a great number of laity," Dr. Samuel Seabury was consecrated Bishop of Connecticut, by the Rt. Rev. Messrs. Kilgour, Petrie, and Skinner, Bishops of the Episcopal Church in Scotland. On the following day a "Concordate" between the Church in Scotland and that in Connecticut was agreed upon, and signed and sealed by the four Bishops. Of this Concordate the fifth article is in the following words:

"Art. V. As the Celebration of the holy Eucharist, or the Administration of the Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ, is the principal Bond of Union among Christians, as well as the most solemn Act of Worship in the Christian Church, the Bishops aforesaid agree in desiring that there may be as little Variance here as possible; and tho' the Scottish Bishops are very far from prescribing to their Brethren in this matter, they cannot help ardently wishing that Bishop Seabury would endeavour all he can, consistently with peace and prudence, to make the Celebration of this venerable Mystery conformable to the most primitive Doctrine and Practice in that respect: Which is the pattern the Church of Scotland has copied after in her Communion Office, and which it has been the Wish of some of the most eminent Divines of the Church of England, that she also had more closely followed than she seems to have done since she gave up her first reformed Liturgy, used in the Reign of King Edward VI., between which, and the form used in the Church of Scotland, there is no Difference in any point, which the primitive Church reckoned essential to the right Ministration of the holy Eucharist. In this capital Article therefore of the Eucharistic Service, in which the Scottish Bishops so earnestly wish for as much Unity as possible, Bishop Seabury also agrees to take a serious View of the Communion Office recommended by them, and if found agreeable to the genuine Standards of Antiquity, to give his Sanction to it, and by gentle Methods of Argument and Persuasion, to endeavour, as they have done, to introduce it by degrees into practice, without the Compulsion of Authority on the one side, or the prejudice of former Custom on the other."<sup>1</sup>

The clergy of Connecticut assembled in Convocation at Middletown, on the 2d day of August, 1785, and gave their Bishop a hearty welcome. We are told that when the Concordate, with the accompanying letter from the Scotch Bishops, was laid before the clergy, it excited in them the warmest sentiments of gratitude and esteem.<sup>2</sup> At this meeting the Rev. Messrs. Bowden and Jarvis of Connecticut and the Rev. Mr. Parker of Boston were appointed a committee to act with the Bishop in proposing such changes in the Prayer-Book as should be thought needful. The committee met immediately and agreed upon certain alterations. Part of these were reserved to be reported to the next meeting of Convocation, which was to be held at New Haven in September<sup>3</sup>; but the changes in the state prayers were published at once by the Bishop in the following pastoral letter:

<sup>1</sup> Fac-simile Publications of the Historical Club, No. 13.

<sup>2</sup> Dr. Beardsley's History of the Church in Connecticut, i. 368.

<sup>3</sup> Dr. Parker's letter in Documentary History of Conn., ii. 318.

SAMUEL, by divine permission, Bishop of the Episcopal Church in the State of Connecticut, to the Clergy of the said Church, GREETING.

IT having pleased Almighty GOD, that the late British Colony of Connecticut should become a free, sovereign and independent State, as it now is, some alterations in the Liturgy and Offices of our Church are necessary to be made, to accommodate them to the civil Constitution of the country in which we live; for the peace, security and prosperity of which, both as good subjects and faithful Christians, it is our duty constantly to pray—WE, the Bishop aforesaid, have thought fit, by and with the advice and assistance of such of our Clergy as we have had opportunity of consulting, to issue this Injunction, hereby authorising and requiring You, and every one of You, the Presbyters and Deacons of the Church above mentioned, in the celebration of Divine Service, to make the following alterations in the Liturgy and Offices of our Church, viz.

I. In the suffrages after the Creed, in morning and evening Prayer, instead of O Lord save the King, You are to read, O Lord save the Church; to which the congregation are to make the accustomed response, And mercifully hear us, &c.

II. The prayer for the King, in the morning and evening service, to be left out; and the prayer for the Royal Family to be thus altered; Almighty God, the fountain of all goodness, we humbly beseech thee to blest the Governor and Rulers of this State; endue them with thy Holy Spirit;—and so on as it now stands.

III. In the Litany the 15, 16, 17, 18th petitions to be omitted, and the petition for Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, immediately to follow that for the universal Church. The 20, and 21st petitions to be thus read, That it may please thee to endue the Governor and Rulers of this State, with grace, wisdom and understanding. That it may please thee to blest and keep the Judges and inferior Magistrates, giving them grace to execute justice and to maintain truth. To both which the usual response—We beseech thee to hear us, good Lord,--- is to be made by the congregation.

IV. In the prayer for the whole state of Christ's Church, the part relating to Rulers and Ministers to be thus altered---We beseech thee also to save and defend all Christian Kings, Princes, and Governors; and grant that they, and all that are put in authority, may truly and impartially minister justice, to the punishment of wickedness and vice, and to the maintenance of true religion and virtue. Give grace, O heavenly Father, to all Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, that they may---and so on, as it now stands.

V. The prayers for the King that stand before the Nicene Creed in the Communion service, to be omitted.

VI. In the answer in the Catechism to the question---What is thy duty towards thy neighbour? for---to honor and obey the King---substitute, to honor and obey my civil Rulers, to submit myself, &c.

VII. That during every session of the Great and General Court, or Affably, you do use the following collect, in its proper place, both in morning and evening prayer.

" Most gracious God, we humbly beseech thee, as for this State in general, " so especially for the great and general Court at this time assembled: That " thou wouldst be pleased to direct and prosper all their consultations to the " advancement of thy glory, the good of thy church, the safety, honor, and " welfare of thy people; that all things may be so ordered and settled by " their endeavours, upon the best and surest foundations, that peace and hap- " piness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us " for all generations. There and all other necessities for them, for us, and " thy whole church, we humbly beg in the name and mediation of Jesus " Christ our most blessed Lord and Saviour. Amen.

VIII. That you discontinue the observance of the fifth of November, the thirtieth of January, the twenty-ninth of May, and the twenty-fifth of October.

Commending you, Reverend Brethren, your congregations, and labours in the Gospel, to the grace, protection, and blessing of Almighty God, We remain your affectionate brother and servant in Christ Jesus, our Lord.

Done at New-London,
Aug. 12th, 1785.

The Convention of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire met at Boston, on the 7th of September, having before them the report of the committee appointed at Middletown in August. The changes in the state prayers were adopted, with the characteristic substitution of "Commonwealth" for "State," and recommended for immediate use. A considerable number of other alterations were also agreed to, but it was voted that their use should be postponed in order that it might be seen how far the other States would conform to them.<sup>1</sup> Dr. Parker, writing to Bishop Seabury on the 12th of September, says that this Convention adopted most of the changes proposed at Middletown, with a few others; the changes of any importance to which assent was not given, being expressly stated to be the omission of the second Lesson in the Morning Service, and that of the Gospel and the Exhortation in the Baptismal-Office.<sup>1</sup> In the lack of records of the early Conventions of Connecticut, we look to the journal of the Massachusetts Convention for an account of suggested alterations; and it is noticeable that the only changes proposed in the Communion-Office were the omission of the Lord's Prayer at the beginning, the omission of the prayers for the King, a different petition for rulers in the prayer for the Church Militant, somewhat different phraseology in the first Warning and the first Exhortation, and a permission to repeat the sentences at administration but once for all then present at the altar.<sup>2</sup> It is evident, therefore, that Bishop Seabury took no steps in 1785 to introduce the Scotch Liturgy. The Massachusetts Convention was kept under adjournments until July 20th, 1786, and at last it was left to the discretion of the different parishes to adopt the alterations or to retain the old liturgy.<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Reprint of Mass. Journals, pp. 8, sqq.

Bishop Seabury sent a copy of the substitutes for the state prayers to Dr. (afterwards Bishop) White, of Philadelphia, under date of August 19, 1785, with the words: "Should more be done, it must be a work of time and great deliberation."<sup>4</sup> And in fact, the clergy of Connecticut were found unwilling to agree to any other alterations in the Prayer-Book. Especially when the convention of the states to the south of New England met

<sup>1</sup> Doc. Hist. Conn., ii. 284.

<sup>2</sup> Reprint of Mass. Journals, pp. 11, 12.

<sup>3</sup> Doc. Hist. Conn., ii. 319.

<sup>4</sup> Ibid., ii. 282.

at Philadelphia, September 27th to October 7th, 1785, and prepared the book since known as the "Proposed Book," the Churchmen of Connecticut were alarmed. Mr. Parker had hoped that the meeting at Philadelphia would go no further than his own convention had gone; but he evidently felt aggrieved that the clergy of Connecticut were not willing to go so far. Bishop Seabury wrote to him, November 28th, 1785, as follows:

"Between the time of our parting at Middletown and the clerical meeting at New Haven, it was found that the Church people in Connecticut were much alarmed at the thoughts of any considerable alterations being made in the Prayer Book; and upon the whole, it was judged best that no alterations should be attempted at present, but to wait till a little time shall have cooled down the tempers and conciliated the affections of people to each other. And since the convention at Philadelphia, which, as report says, has abrogated two creeds and nineteen articles, and taken great liberties with the prayers, &c., we are more apprehensive of proceeding to any alterations."<sup>1</sup>

This Proposed Book was published in the spring of 1786.<sup>2</sup> On the 22nd of September in the same year, Bishop Seabury delivered his second charge to his clergy assembled in Convocation at Derby. In it he said:

"It is always a disagreeable task to be obliged to mention any matter with censure, or even disapprobation; and I am very happy that the measure of which I am now to take notice can call for animadversion only by way of caution. A number of Clergy and Laity in the southern States have undertaken to revise and alter the Liturgy and Offices and Government of the Church, and have exhibited a Prayer-book to the public. The time will not permit me to say anything of the merit of the alterations in the Liturgy; but, I am persuaded, by an unprejudiced mind, some of them will be thought for the worse, most of them not for the better. But the authority on which they have acted is unknown in the Episcopal Church. The government of the Church by Bishops we hold to have been established by the Apostles, acting under the commission of Christ and the direction of the Holy Ghost; and therefore is not to be altered by any power on earth, nor indeed by an angel from heaven. This government they have degraded by lodging the chief authority in a Convention of clerical and lay Delegates, making their Church Episcopal in its orders, but Presbyterian in its government.

<sup>1</sup> Ibid., ii. 287.

<sup>2</sup> The Prothonotary's certificate is dated April 1st, 1786.

"Liturgies are left more to the prudence and judgment of the governors of the Church; and the primitive practice seems to have been that the Bishop did, with the advice no doubt of his Presbyters, provide a Liturgy for the use of his diocese. This ought to have been the case here. Bishops should first have been obtained to preside over those Churches. And to those Bishops, with the Proctors of the Clergy, should have been committed the business of compiling a Liturgy for the use of the Church throughout the states. This would have ensured unity in doctrine, worship, and discipline through the whole, which upon the present plan will either not be obtained, or, if obtained, will not be durable. And should we ever be so happy, through the merciful providence of God, as to obtain such a meeting, great regard ought to be had to the primitive Liturgies and Forms, in compiling a book of Common-Prayer."<sup>1</sup>

At this Convocation, Bishop Seabury, acting on the principles which he had thus laid down, set forth the Communion-Office which is reprinted in the foregoing pages, and "recommended" it "to the Episcopal Congregations in Connecticut."<sup>1</sup> This office was taken, with certain alterations which will presently be noticed in detail, from that which was then in use in the Scotch Church. This latter is said to have been compiled by Bishops Forbes and Falconer, and was first published in 1764. Hall says that it "may be considered as the second standard edition"; the first having been Bishop Gadderer's edition of 1743, which was recognized by the canons of that year,<sup>2</sup> as the edition of 1764 (reprinted in 1765) was by later canons.<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Pages 11, 12. The Bishop passes on to speak of the value of the testimony of the early Church, of the doctrine of the Sacraments, and of the necessity, in view of present dangers and errors, of holding fast to the primitive faith.

The first Scotch Prayer-Book was that published in 1637, under the direction of King Charles I.<sup>4</sup> It is <sup>1</sup> Dr. Jarvis's A Voice from Connecticut, p. 25; Dr. Beardsley's Life of Bishop Seabury, p. 263. A new State prayer was also provided. Ibid., p. 264. The manuscript records of Convocation do not begin till 1790, when the secretary was directed to procure a blank-book in which to record the minutes. Space was left at the beginning of the book as if to insert the minutes of former meetings, but this was never done. It seems, from a letter of the Rev. Roger Viets of Simsbury to the Rev. Mr. Parker of Boston, that the Convocation which met at Wallingford on the 27th of February in the next year (1787) took steps towards setting forth for the use of the Church in Connecticut a complete edition of the Prayer-Book. It was at this Convocation that a Coadjutor was elected to Bishop Seabury; but the union of the dioceses in the country made his consecration unnecessary.

<sup>2</sup> Fragmenta Liturgica, i., pp. liii., lv. The "Non-juring" and Scotch offices are in vol. v.

<sup>3</sup> Neale's Life of Torry, p. 270. The edition of 1743 differs in date only from that of 1735.

<sup>4</sup> His father King James (VI. of Scotland and I. of England) had taken steps for composing a Scotch liturgy as early as 1616. Sprott, Scottish Liturgies, p. xviii.

frequently called by the name of Archbishop Laud, who was appointed, together with Bishops Juxon and Wren, to examine and revise a draft which had been prepared in Scotland, the chief compilers being Maxwell, Bishop of Ross, and Wedderburn of Dunblane.<sup>1</sup> The chief variations from the English book which was then in use (that of 1559) were in the Communion-Office. The prayer for the Church Militant and the prayer of Consecration were more nearly conformed to the first book of Edward VI. than to that of Elizabeth, the words of Institution being preceded by an Invocation and followed by an Oblation, an Intercession, and the Lord's Prayer. The words at the delivery of the elements were also the same as in 1549. The only variation in order between the proposed Scotch liturgy and that then in use in England, was that the prayer of Humble Access was placed after the prayer of Consecration.

The Prayer-Book of 1637, as is well known, was at once withdrawn; but the subsequent Scotch Communion-Offices were to some extent modelled upon that contained in it. Changes, however, began to be made in the order of the several parts of the service; and in 1735 Gadderer's book appeared, having the order which was contained in the book of 1764 and in Bishop Seabury's office, except that the Offertory preceded the Exhortation, and that, in the prayer of Consecration, the Invocation preceded the words of Institution. The words of Institution, the Oblation, and the Invocation had appeared in this their primitive and true order, for the first time in any service-book in the English language, in Stephens's "Liturgy of the Ancient Christians," about the year 1700<sup>1</sup>; and this order is found also in the Non-Jurors' book of 1718, in Deacon's Liturgy of 1734, in Ratray's of 1744, and in a Scotch office of 1755, to which that of 1764 is in every respect in close resemblance.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Sprott, ibid., Introduction, to page lxx.; Skinner on the Scotch Communion-Office (Aberdeen, 1807), p. 25; Hall, Reliquiæ Liturgicæ, i., pp. xix., sqq.; Bright in Blunt's Annotated P. B., pp. 580, sqq. Bp. Juxon took no part in the revision; but Bp. Cosin would seem to have been concerned in it; see Sprott, lix., note i.

The following collation shows the changes which Bishop Seabury introduced into the Scotch office of 1764. Every difference in words has been noted; only unimportant changes in punctuation and in the use of capitals have been omitted.

Page.line.	Scotch Office, 1764.	Bishop Seabury's, 1786.
3, 7	what St. Paul writeth to the Corinthians; how he exhorteth	how St. Paul exhorteth
17	unworthily. For then we are guilty of the body and blood of Christ our Saviour: we eat and drink our own damnation, not considering the Lord's body: we kindle God's wrath against us; we provoke him to plague us with divers diseases, and sundry kinds of death.	unworthily, not considering the Lord's body; for then we are guilty of the body and blood of Christ our Saviour; we kindle God's wrath against us, and bring his judgments upon us.

<sup>1</sup> Frag. Liturg., ii. 61, sqq.

<sup>2</sup> The Non-Jurors' and Scotch services may be found in Frag. Liturg., vol. v., Deacon's in vol. vi., and Ratray's in vol. i. See Neale's Life of Torrey, chap. vii.

Page.line.	Scotch Office, 1764.	Bishop Seabury's, 1786.
3, 23	Lord. Repent you humble	Lord; repent you most humble
4, 5	Presbyter	Priest
5, 1		[and so throughout.]
6	by his discretion, according to the length or shortness of the time that the people are offering.	in his discretion.
10	Lord: and Abel,	Lord. And Abel,
22	charges? Who planteth	charges? who planteth
27	a great thing if we shall	a great matter if we should
30	live of the things of the temple?	live of the sacrifice?
7, 4	He who soweth	He that soweth
8, 5	people there present	people
7	bring the said bason with the oblations therein, and deliver it	bring, and deliver it
20	upon the Lord's Table; and shall say,	upon the Lord's table, putting a little pure water into the cup: and shall say,
11, 12	Amen.	Amen.
15	both his hands, shall say	both his hands, and shall say,
21	who (by his own oblation of himself once offered) made a full, perpetual memorial beseeching thee, that whoever shall be partakers	who made there (by his one oblation of himself once offered) a full, perpetual memory humbly beseeching thee, that we and all others who shall be partakers be filled
13, 15	and be filled our alms, and especially thy servant our King, that under him we may be godly and quietly governed. And grant unto his whole Council, and to all who are put in authority under him, that they may truly and indifferently administer justice,	our alms and oblations, and grant that they, and all who are in authority, may truly and impartially administer justice
14, 7
16

<sup>1</sup> Evidently a misprint.

Page. line.	Scotch Office, 1764.	Bishop Seabury's, 1786.
14, 31	which is here assembled	here assembled
15, 10	labours. And we yield unto thee	labours : yielding unto thee
12	wonderful grace and virtue	wonderful goodness and virtue
27	¶ Then shall the Presbyter say :	[No rubric.]
16, 7	Then the Presbyter shall say	Then shall the Priest say
14	Draw near, and take	Draw near with faith and take
18	with the Presbyter ; he first kneeling down.	with the Priest ; all humbly kneeling upon their knees.
17, 14	all them who	all them that
21	Then shall the Presbyter also say,	Then shall the Priest say,
25	I will give you rest.	I will refresh you.
	[No "Private Ejaculations" or "Private Devotions for the Altar."]
19, 4	our souls washed	and our souls washed
20	And the Presbyter, or Minister, that receiveth the cup himself, or delivereth it to others, shall say this	And when the Priest receiveth the cup himself, or delivereth it to others, he shall say,
21, 7	Benediction :	resolutions ; that being
22, 8	resolutions ; and that, being and dost assure us	and doth <sup>1</sup> assure us
21	with the Father, and	with Thee and
26	to God in the highest,	to God on high,

It may be of interest to add that the Scotch Communion-Office has remained almost without change since 1764. The edition published by the Rev. John Skinner of Forfar (son of the Bishop of Aberdeen), in 1800,<sup>2</sup> and reprinted by him in his "Scotch Communion-Office Illustrated," in 1807, differs from it only in the insertion of the words "and oblations" and the name of the Sovereign in the prayer for the Church, the change of "who" into "which" in the Lord's Prayer, the addition of "meekly kneeling upon your knees" to the Invitation, the insertion of "and" before "our souls" in the prayer of Humble Access, and the change of "soul and body" into "body and soul" in the words of administration. Bishop Torry's Prayer-Book, published in Edinburgh in 1849,<sup>1</sup> besides prefixing an "Ante-Communion Service" (of which more will be said presently), makes the same changes except that in the Invitation, begins a new paragraph in the Trisagion at the word "Holy," and does the same in the Prayer of Consecration at the beginning of the Invocation and of each of the two following petitions. As at present printed for use, the Scotch Communion-Office prefixes an "Ante-Communion Service," and agrees in other respects with the edition of 1800 and 1807, except that the Trisagion is printed in two paragraphs, the prayer of Consecration in nine, and the prayer for the Church in nine.

Although the old Scotch Communion-Offices begin with the Exhortation, we have the testimony of Mr. Skinner in a note to Bishop Horsley's Collation of Offices, which forms an appendix to his "Scotch Communion-Office Illustrated," that an introductory service was used ; and the form which is given agrees substantially with that in the two services mentioned at the end of the last paragraph. This latter form differs from that in the <sup>1</sup> The history of this book should be read in Neale's Life of Bishop Torry, chaps. vii. and viii.; in the appendix to which it is collated with the book of 1637, the Non-Jurors' office, and the received Scotch form (that of 1764).

<sup>1</sup> Evidently a misprint.

<sup>2</sup> Hall calls it the third standard edition. It may be found in Frag. Liturg., v. 253.

English book in allowing our Lord's summary of the Law followed by a versicle to be read instead of the Ten Commandments with their versicles; in providing the collect for grace and strength to keep the Commandments, its use being discretionary with one of the two collects for the Sovereign; and in instructing the people to say when the Gospel is announced, "Glory be to Thee, O God," and at its end, "Thanks be to Thee, O Lord, for this Thy glorious Gospel."<sup>1</sup> It is probable that Bishop Seabury and his clergy used the "Ante-Communion Service" of the English Book; for in a folio English Prayer-Book which was used by the Bishop in St. James's Church, New London, after the Revolution, is our present prayer for the civil authority, written out and pasted over the prayer for the Sovereign which follows the Commandments.<sup>2</sup>

Bishop Seabury's Communion-Office seems to have been almost, if not quite, universally adopted by the clergy of Connecticut. We are told that they "became very much attached to it, not only from the recommendation of their Bishop, but from the conviction that this order was in more exact conformity [than the English liturgy] with the earliest usage of the Christian Church."<sup>1</sup> Its general use probably ceased when the American Book of Common Prayer began to be used, October 1st, 1790; but, as will be noted below, it was employed by some of the clergy at a much later date.

<sup>1</sup> Bishop Torrey's edition, following that of 1637, directs the Priest to say, "Here endeth the Holy Gospel"; but there is no such direction in the later edition. There were two sets of rubrics in 1637, one in the usual place, and the other before and after the Gospel for the First Sunday in Advent.

<sup>2</sup> Dr. Hallam's Annals of St. James's Church, p. 72. The first Church in New London was burned in 1781, and the second was not finished till 1787. There is a tradition that, while Bishop Seabury officiated in the Court-House, he celebrated the Holy Communion every Sunday after morning prayer, in the large parlor of the house in which he lived. Ibid., p. 71. He would naturally begin with the Exhortation. See below.

A "General Convention" assembled at Philadelphia, July 28th, 1789. On the 5th day of August, on motion of the Rev. Dr. William Smith of Maryland, it was voted (inter alia) that "it be proposed to the churches in the New England states to meet the churches of these states, with the said three Bishops [the Rt. Rev. Drs. White, Provost, and Seabury], in an adjourned Convention, to settle certain articles of union among all the churches."<sup>2</sup>

The clergy of Connecticut met on the 15th of September, and on the next day they elected the Rev. Messrs. Hubbard and Jarvis their delegates to the adjourned convention. They were "empowered to confer with the General Convention on the subject of making alterations in the Book of Common Prayer; but the ratification of such alterations was expressly reserved, to rest with the Bishop and clergy of the Church."<sup>3</sup> The Convention assembled on the 29th of September, and it was divided into two houses on the 3d of October. One of the first votes of the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies ordered the appointment of a committee "to prepare an order for the administration of the Holy Communion." This committee reported on the 9th, one day after the House of Bishops (the Rt. Rev. Drs. Seabury and White) had "prepared their proposals" on this service. On the 13th, the lower house agreed to the report of their committee on the Communion Service; and on the 14th, the proposed service was sent to the Bishops, who at once made amendments and returned it. The lower house concurred in all the amendments except one, which was immediately withdrawn by the Bishops; and thus both houses agreed to the present American Communion-Office on the 14th day of October, 1789.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Dr. Beardsley's History, i. 388.

<sup>2</sup> Journal, p. 14.

<sup>3</sup> Beardsley, i. 409, 410.

That it was owing to Bishop Seabury that the Prayer of Consecration in that office followed the Scotch model is beyond a question. In a letter which he wrote to Bishop White, under date of June 29, 1789, after criticizing the action of the Philadelphia Convention in other matters, he had written as follows:

"That the most exceptionable part of the English book is the Communion Office may be proved by a number of very respectable names among her Clergy. The grand fault in that office is the deficiency of a more formal oblation of the elements, and of the invocation of the Holy Ghost to sanctify and bless them. The Consecration is made to consist merely in the Priest's laying his hands on the elements and pronouncing 'This is my body,' &c., which words are not consecration at all, nor were they addressed by Christ to the Father, but were declarative to the Apostles. This is so exactly symbolizing with the Church of Rome in an error; an error, too, on which the absurdity of Transubstantiation is built, that nothing but having fallen into the same error themselves, could have prevented the enemies of the Church from casting it in her teeth. The efficacy of Baptism, of Confirmation, of Orders, is ascribed to the Holy Ghost, and His energy is implored for that purpose; and why He should not be invoked in the consecration of the Eucharist, especially as all the old Liturgies are full to the point, I cannot conceive. It is much easier to account for the alterations of the first Liturgy of Edward the VI., than to justify them; and as I have been told there is a vote on the minutes of your Convention, anno 1786, I believe, for the revision of this matter, I hope it will be taken up, and that God will raise up some able and worthy advocate for this primitive practice, and make you and the Convention the instruments of restoring it to His Church in America. It would do you more honor in the world, and contribute more to the union of the churches than any other alterations you can make, and would restore the Holy Eucharist to its ancient dignity and efficacy."<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Journal of Convention.

The strength of Bishop Seabury's convictions on this subject appeared when, on the morning of Sunday, the 11th of October, during the session of the Convention, Bishop White asked him to consecrate the elements, and he twice declined, saying the second time in a pleasant manner: "To confess the truth, I hardly consider the form to be used [that of the English book] as strictly amounting to a consecration."<sup>2</sup>

"It may perhaps be expected," says Bishop White, "that the great change made in restoring to the consecration prayer the oblationary words and the invocation of the Holy Spirit, left out in King Edward's reign, must at least have produced an opposition. But no such thing happened to any considerable extent; or at least, the author did not hear of any in the other house, further than a disposition to the effect in a few gentlemen, which was counteracted by some pertinent remarks of the president. In that of the bishops, it lay very near to the heart of Bishop Seabury. As for the other bishop [Bishop White himself], without conceiving with some, that the service as it stood was essentially defective, he always thought there was a beauty in those ancient forms, and can discover no superstition in them."<sup>1</sup> He then goes on to explain how in the first edition of the new book the words "which we now offer unto thee" were printed, as in the Scotch office, in small capitals; though in all succeeding editions<sup>2</sup> they were, as was intended, in the same type as the rest of the prayer.

<sup>1</sup> Doc. Hist. Conn., ii. 331. See also Bp. Seabury's Sermon "Of the Holy Eucharist" (Sermons, Vol. i., Discourse vi.), in which reference is made to Brett's Dissertation and to [Bp. Rat-tray's] Liturgy of Jerusalem.

<sup>2</sup> Bp. White's Memoirs of the Church, second edition, pp. 154, 155. "These sentiments he had adopted," adds Bp. White, "in his visit to the bishops from whom he received his Episcopacy." This, though at first sight a natural supposition, is probably a mistake.

The president of the lower house, whose pertinent remarks are said by Bishop White to have counteracted some disposition to raise objections to the change proposed, was the Rev. Dr. William Smith, who has been mentioned above. Dr. Smith was a native of Scotland, who had been ordained to the diaconate and the priesthood at the same time and place as Bishop Seabury. On grounds which need not be mentioned here, he "had been opposed to the non-juring bishops in Scotland communicating the Episcopate to Connecticut; and he had said some things not very complimentary to the candidate from this State, "in his steps to reach the apostolic office."<sup>1</sup> But, as we have seen, he had proposed the invitation to the Bishop and Clergy of Connecticut; he entertained the Bishop during his stay in Philadelphia; and tradition has it that, when certain members of the lower house were beginning to object to the prayer of Consecration which was proposed by the Bishops, he reproved them for finding fault with something which they had not heard, and thereupon read the prayer with so impressive a tone and manner that the objections were no further urged. The form, says Dr. Jarvis, "was admitted without opposition, and in silence if not in reverence."<sup>2</sup> It is, then, to Bishop Seabury and Dr. Smith that the Church in this country is indebted for its prayer of Consecration in the Communion-Office.

<sup>1</sup> Ibid., p. 154.

<sup>2</sup> This is not quite accurate. The small capitals appear in the editions of both 1790 and 1791. Rev. Frederick Gibson's Historical Essay, p. 23. In the first edition of the Prayer-Book, the words in the Apostles' Creed, "He descended into hell," are enclosed in brackets; but it is only in Evening Prayer that they are printed in italics; in Morning Prayer and the Visitation of the Sick they are in ordinary type. Bp. White's statement (Memoirs, p. 151) needs this correction.

It was probably owing to the influence of the delegation from Maryland that the wording of the Invocation was changed from that in the Scotch office to that which we now use. Writing to the Rev. Mr. Parker of Boston, April 17th, 1786, Dr. Smith says that the Maryland Convention, having the "Proposed Book" under consideration, had decided to recommend "an addition to the Consecration Prayer, in the Holy Communion, something analogous to that of the Liturgy of Edward VI. and the Scots' Liturgy, invoking a blessing on the Elements of Bread and Wine," changing the prayer "that they may become the body and blood, etc." to "that we receiving the same, according to Thy Son, our Saviour Jesus Christ's holy Institution, etc." He adds: "This I think will be a proper amendment, and it perfectly satisfies such of our Clergy and people as were attached to the Scots' and other ancient Liturgies, all of which have an Invocation of a blessing on the Elements, as is, indeed, most proper."<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Beardsley, i. 377. Dr. Smith was at one time Provost of the University of Pennsylvania.

<sup>2</sup> A Voice from Connecticut, p. 26.

It may be worth while to note that both the Concordate quoted at the beginning of this sketch, and Bishop Seabury's letter, as well as Bishop White's words in his Memoirs, seem to imply that, in the opinion of the writers, the first Liturgy of Edward VI. and the Scotch office contained prayers of Consecration which were substantially the same; whereas in fact the Invocation in the first Book of Edward VI. stands in an anomalous place, followed as it is by the words of Institution, and that by <sup>1</sup> Doc. Hist. Conn., i. 291. The vote of the Convention is printed in the appendix to the Journal of Maryland, 1855, p. 18. It is very interesting to note that the latter part of this form had been proposed in the draft of a Prayer-Book made in Scotland in the reign of King James (probably in 1619) and sent to London not later than 1629. Sprott, pp. xxxiv., lxx., 72. The prayer of Invocation, says this author, "is thought essential by the [Presbyterian] Church of Scotland, and to this day the want of it in the English Prayer-Book is spoken of among us as a very serious defect." Ibid., p. lxxviii. Dr. Sancroft proposed a form almost identical with that adopted in 1789. Bulley's Variations, p. 191. Both phrases were used in 1637, the first having the form "that they may be unto us the body and blood of Thy most dearly beloved Son." The Rev. William Smith of Stepney Parish, Md., as appears from a letter written in 1785, was in the habit of using the Scotch office, and persisted in it in spite of the objections of Dr. William Smith.

the Oblation; while in the Scotch Book the order is that of the ancient Liturgies, as was noted above. Its compilers used the words of the book of 1549, but they put them in the order which they knew to have the sanction of antiquity.

Such was the great point in which Bishop Seabury's liturgy influenced the formation of the Communion-Office which is still, by God's good providence, used throughout the Church in the United States. It is thought that this influence may be traced in another matter which, though it is by no means of equal importance, is yet worthy of careful consideration.

In the first Prayer-Book of King Edward VI., it was provided that if the sermon did not contain an exhortation to the people "to the worthy receiving of the holy Sacrament of the body and blood of our Saviour Christ," the curate should give an exhortation to those that were minded to receive the same; and this exhortation, which is nearly word for word the same that is still used in the Communion Service, beginning "Dearly beloved in the Lord," was followed by the Offertory. Then, if there was no Communion, the Priest was instructed to say one or two collects and to dismiss the people with the accustomed blessing. But if there was a Communion, it was ordered that those who intended to partake of it should "tarry still in the quire or in some convenient place nigh the quire," and that all others should "depart out of the quire except the Ministers and Clerks." The prayer for the Church, it may be noted, came after the Trisagion. In 1552 the prayer for the Church was placed immediately after the Offertory, and the Minister was instructed, when there was no Communion, to say "all that is appointed at the Communion till the end of the homily, concluding with the general prayer for the whole estate of Christ's Church militant here in earth, and one or more collects." The same rubric was repeated in 1559 and in 1604; in 1662 it was made more explicit, requiring that everything should be said to the end of the general prayer, and that the Blessing should be given after the Collects. It was at this point in the service, then, that non-communicants were expected to withdraw from the Church.<sup>1</sup> But in the Non-jurors' Book of 1718, the Offertory is placed after the Exhortation, which is addressed to the communicants, and is closely followed, as in the later Scotch services, by the Trisagion; and at the end of the service, there is the following important rubric: "After the Sermon or Homily is ended, (or, if there be no Sermon or Homily, after the Nicene Creed is ended,) if there be no Communion, the Priest shall turn to the people, and say, Let us pray. And then, turning to the Altar, he shall stand before it, and say one or more of these Collects last before rehearsed, concluding with the Blessing." The other Scotch offices which are reprinted in Hall's Fragmenta Liturgica contain no part of the service to be used before the Sermon, and give no instructions as to what shall be done when there is no Communion, it being evidently considered that all that is printed is, as is expressly said on the title-pages, the Communion-office "as far as concerneth the Ministration of that Holy Sacrament." The editions of 1724 and 1743 begin with the Offertory; but that of 1755<sup>1</sup> and all that follow begin with the Exhortation; and on the reverse of the title-page of the edition of 1844, we find: "The Catechumens and other Non-Communicants being dismissed, the Holy Office proceedeth as here set forth." Bishop Torry's Prayer-Book has this rubric: "Then shall follow the Sermon; and when the Holy Eucharist is to be celebrated, the Minister shall dismiss the non-communicants in these or like words, Let those who are not to communicate now depart." It would appear, then, as well from express directions in books which Bishop Seabury followed or which were based on those that he followed, as from the structure of the office which he set forth, that none but communicants were supposed to be present at the time of the Offertory; and if not at that time, then certainly not at the offering of the prayer for the Church, which invariably occupies a later place in the service.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> See Scudamore, Notitia Eucharistica, first edition, p. 391, and note the reference to Bp. Cosin.

Now bearing these facts in mind, it certainly seems that the changes introduced in 1789 into certain of the rubrics of the English Liturgy, in adapting them to the use of the American Church, show that it was the intention of

<sup>1</sup> See the "Direction" on the reverse of the title.

<sup>2</sup> It ought perhaps to be noted that Bishop Drummond's service (1796) contemplates an offertory and the use of the prayer for the Church, and Bishop Torry's book (1849) an offertory, on occasions when there is no Communion. In the use of the prayer for the Church in the former service, it is curious to observe, the words "alms and" "are to be omitted, except when the offering is to be given away in charity. . . . N. B. The offerings of the people, when for the support of the clergy, are not alms, but a debt." See 1 Cor. ix. chap. from the 7. to the 15 verse."

the revisers that the non-communicants should withdraw from the Church after the Sermon and before the Offertory and the prayer for the Church. The English Book says: "Then shall follow the Sermon"—"Then shall the Priest return to the Lord's Table and begin the Offertory"—"And when there is a Communion, the Priest shall then place upon the Table so much Bread and Wine as he shall think sufficient." But the American Book says: "Then shall follow the Sermon. After which, the Minister, when there is a Communion, shall return to the Lord's Table and begin the Offertory"—"And the Priest shall then place upon the Table so much Bread and Wine as he shall think sufficient." And instead of putting the break in the service at the end of the prayer for the Church, the American Book directs that when there is no Communion, there "shall be said all that is appointed at the Communion, unto the end of the Gospel, concluding with the Blessing."<sup>1</sup>

There can be no question as to the custom which prevailed, in Connecticut at least, until twenty or twenty-five years ago, when, in spite of tradition and the implied direction of rubrics, the English custom began to be observed. The Convocation of the clergy of Connecticut, at their meeting, September 6, 1821, resolved, "That the congregations be dismissed, previous to the Communion service, with a Collect and the shorter benediction."<sup>2</sup> This was done after the sermon, and the offerings were received from communicants alone. This was in accordance with primitive usage; "for in these days it was a privilege to be allowed to make their oblations, and a sort of lesser excommunication to be debarred from it";<sup>1</sup> and the great Intercession belonged to the most solemn part of the service.

<sup>1</sup> See also the last rubric in the Form of Consecration of a Church.

<sup>2</sup> Ms. Records.

Having thus used his influence successfully to secure to the Church in America a Communion-Office based on primitive models, and having more than fulfilled the requirements of the Concordate into which he had entered at the time of his consecration, Bishop Seabury returned to his Diocese. His clergy met in Convocation, June 2d, 1790, and made a "short examination" of the Constitution and Canons adopted at Philadelphia; but there is no minute on record of any action in regard to the Prayer-Book. An adjourned meeting was held at Newtown, September 30th, 1790, and on the second day of the session, October 1st, the very day on which the new book was to go into use, we find the following record made:

"The alterations in the Book of Common Prayer made by the General Convention at Philadelphia, were read and considered.

"On motion, The question was put, in these words: 'Whether we confirm the doings of our Proctors in the General Convention at Philadelphia, on the 2d day of Octob<sup>r</sup>, 1789.'

"Which passed in the affirmative by the votes of every member present, the Rev'd Mr. Sayre excepted."<sup>2</sup>

On the following day

"A motion was made, that the Convocation should determine on a mode of introducing the Constitution & Canons & Liturgy in our several parishes: When it was agreed that each of the Clergy should take that method that should appear to him the most eligible. Agreed also that in the use of the New-Prayer-Book, we be as uniform as possible,—& for that purpose, that we approach as near the Old Liturgy, as a compliance with the Rubrics of the New will allow."<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Bingham, Antiq., Book xv., chap. ii., § 2; vol. v., p. 197, ed. 1829.

<sup>2</sup> Ms. Records.

On October 5th, 1791, it was "Voted: That, in the use of the Common Prayer Book we will use the Nicene-Creed on Communion Days, and the Apostle's Creed on all other days."<sup>2</sup>

The new Prayer-Book having been thus adopted, "Bishop Seabury's office passed at once out of general use."<sup>3</sup> "But the change from established customs is seldom easy, and whether the people loved to have it so or not, some of the clergy of that day never learned to carry out in full practice the literal meaning of the rubrical directions of the new Prayer-Book."<sup>4</sup> Dr. Hallam says that the Rev. Charles Seabury (the Bishop's son, and his successor at New London, 1796-1814), probably used it, but that it was never used there after he himself became a communicant.<sup>5</sup> When he took charge of the parish in 1835, Dr. Hallam found some half dozen copies of the pamphlet lying about in the pews of the Church,<sup>6</sup> and it was from one of these, and through his kindness, that this reprint was made in 1874. The writer was informed by the late Rev. Dr. Haight, that Bishop Brownell told him that when he came into the Diocese in 1819, he found some of the older clergy still using Bishop Seabury's Communion-Office, and that he had considerable difficulty in persuading them to substitute the Prayer-Book office in its place.

<sup>1</sup> Ibid.

<sup>2</sup> Ibid.

<sup>3</sup> Dr. Beardsley.

<sup>4</sup> Id., Hist., i. 415.

<sup>5</sup> Ms. Letter.

<sup>6</sup> Annals, p. 71.

The latest remnant of the former use of which the writer has been able to learn was at Cheshire in 1835, when the Rev. Reuben Ives, a former rector of the parish, who had been ordained by Bishop Seabury and had been his assistant at New London, being called upon by the Rev. Dr. Beardsley, then a Deacon in charge of the Parish, to officiate in the Communion Service, "invariably read what is called the prayer of Humble Access immediately after consecrating the elements and just before communicating, as it stands at present in the Scottish office."<sup>1</sup>

So Bishop Seabury's office passed out of use and has become almost forgotten.

It may remove a misunderstanding to add that the Scotch office has not been for many years, if indeed it ever was, the only Communion-office employed by the clergy of Scotland. Bishop Torry said in 1846 that, when he began his ministerial service some sixty years before, there was but one of about sixty-four congregations in Scotland in which the national Eucharistic Form was not used; and he lamented bitterly the introduction and use of the English Office.<sup>2</sup> The canons of 1811 declared the Scotch Office to be of primary authority, and to be used at all Consecrations of Bishops, and forbade its being laid aside in any place where it was in use without the sanction of the College of Bishops.<sup>3</sup> Yet in 1819, no clergyman in the diocese of Edinburgh except the Bishop made use of it.<sup>4</sup> The present canons of the Scotch Church, adopted in 1863 and 1876, allow both the Scotch and the English forms, giving the primary authority to the latter by ordering it to be used at all Consecrations, Ordinations, and Synods, and in all new Congregations unless a majority of the applicants desire the other.<sup>1</sup> At the same time, it is the opinion of those best qualified to judge of the question, that the feeling in favor of the national office is increasing in Scotland.

<sup>1</sup> Life of Bp. Seabury, p. 264, n. <sup>2</sup> Neale's Life, pp. 315, 316.

<sup>3</sup> Ibid., pp. 80, 92 n. This last restriction was afterwards modified.

<sup>4</sup> Ibid., p. 96.

It is hoped that it will not be amiss to add to this historical sketch a few notes on certain parts of the office which is here reprinted.

This service departs from most of the Scotch service-books, including that of 1637, in substituting the word "Priest" for "Presbyter" throughout the service, following therein all the English books from the beginning, and the Non-juring book of 1718.

The offertory sentences are the same as in the book of 1637, one being "reserved for a form of presentation before the Lord."<sup>2</sup> Those which were not then adopted from the English service were "taken out of Bishop Andrewes his notes upon the Book of Common Prayer."<sup>3</sup> In 1 Cor. ix. 13, Bishop Seabury changed "live of the things of the temple" (the authorized version of ἐκ τοῦ ἱεροῦ) into "live of the sacrifice," which accords with all the editions of the English Prayer-Book, and has passed over into the American office.

The expression in the rubric after the presentation of the offertory, "shall then offer up, and place the bread and wine prepared for the sacrament upon the Lord's table," was also taken from the book of 1637. The order for the mixture of water with the wine was not in that book, nor, as will be seen from the collation above given, in the Scotch office of 1764; but the English service of 1549 had said "putting thereto a little pure and clean water," and the Non-jurors' service of 1718 had given the same direction, adding "in the view of the people." The question of the mixture was one of the subjects of dispute between the Usagers and the Non-usagers;<sup>1</sup> and it would seem that Bishop Seabury agreed with the former. Bishop Andrewes and Archbishop Laud are said to have practised the mixture.<sup>2</sup> The English books gave no instructions as to placing the bread and wine upon the table from 1552 to 1662; and at the latter date (as will be noticed again presently) the words "and oblations" were inserted in the prayer for the Church.

<sup>1</sup> Canon xxx.

<sup>2</sup> Skinner, p. 100.

<sup>3</sup> L'Estrange, Alliance of Divine Offices, chap. 6, note iv. p. 189, ed. 1659.

One of the most strange things in the American Communion-Service is that the use of the old Proper Preface for Trinity Sunday, or even the use of the alternative form, is left discretionary. The second form is said to have been allowed, because the first was too strong doctrine to be altogether acceptable to Bishop Provoost; but whether it was to please him (although he was not present at the Convention of 1789) that the use of any Proper Preface on that day was made discretionary, does not appear.

<sup>1</sup> Frag. Liturg., i., pp. xxxvii., xxxviii., l., and references; Buley, p. 156, note; Brett, Dissertation, p. 369.

<sup>2</sup> Wheatly, chap. 6, sect. 11, fn.; Interleaved Prayer Book, p. 175. Abp. Laud's custom was retained in All Hallows, Barking, in 1720. Brett, p. 357.

The impressive and solemn words with which the Prayer of Consecration begins are first found in the service of 1764. In the fifth line of this prayer it will be noticed that Bishop Seabury inserted "there" after "made." This word is found in all the English books, in Stephens's liturgies, and in the Scotch book of 1637. It was dropped from the Scotch office in 1755, and does not appear again in it. It seems very probable that it was omitted from a conviction that the Oblation which Christ made of Himself was offered (or at least begun), not on the Cross, but in the upper room at the institution of the Eucharist.<sup>1</sup> The reading "own" for "one" is found in Stephens and in the Scotch books beginning with that of 1755;<sup>2</sup> the word "one" may have been changed by the Scotch bishops because it seemed to deny the truth of the continual oblation in Heaven.<sup>3</sup> "Memorial" does not replace "memory" in the Scotch offices till 1764. The words "and sacrifice" were inserted in both of Stephens's liturgies and in the book of 1637.

By the use of "whosoever" instead of "we and all others who," Bishop Seabury changed the last Intercession in the prayer of Consecration from the third to the first person; and it was probably through inadvertence that, both in his office and in the American book, the latter part of the sentence retains the pronouns of the third person.

<sup>1</sup> See Johnson's Unbloody Sacrifice, vol. i., chap. ii., sect. 1, esp. p. 68, ed. 1714.

<sup>2</sup> By misprint or otherwise, "own" appears in several editions of the English Prayer-Book many years earlier than Stephens. Gibson, pp. 27, 28.

<sup>3</sup> Johnson, u. s.

At the General Convention of 1868, the Committee on the Prayer-Book reported that the confusion was not due to any typographical error, and that they were unanimously of the opinion that it was not advisable to change the present phraseology.<sup>1</sup>

It is very difficult if not impossible to suggest any reason for the insertion of the words "and oblations" at the beginning of the prayer for the Church in Bishop Seabury's office. In 1549, when the prayer came between the Trisagion and the Consecration, there was no mention of either alms or oblations; but in 1552, when the prayer was placed immediately after the Offertory, the words "to accept our alms [almose] and" were inserted. In 1662, when the rubric provided for placing the bread and wine upon the table (as has been noticed above), the words "and oblations" were further added, most probably referring to the elements which had thus been set apart for a holy use.<sup>2</sup> The book of 1637 followed in this respect the English book then in use. Unaccountably enough, the Non-jurors' book of 1718, placing the prayer for the Church after both Oblation and Invocation, says, "we humbly beseech thee most mercifully to accept these our oblations, and to receive these our prayers." This book has a prayer of offering immediately following the presentation of the alms and of the bread and wine; so that the words "to accept these our oblations" seem meaningless, or at least superfluous. In 1743, the first "standard" Scotch office placed the prayer for the Church at the end of the Consecration-Prayer, and prayed for acceptance of the alms only. In 1755, the passage from I. Chron. xxix. was ordered to be said "after presenting the elements and offertory upon the altar,"<sup>1</sup> but the prayer for the Church was in the same place as in 1743, and asked for acceptance of the alms alone. In 1764, the words of David were ordered to be used on presenting the alms and before presenting the elements, and the prayer for the Church was in this particular as before. But in 1796 the words "and oblations" appear, as in Bishop Seabury's office; and there is a note providing that they shall be omitted when there is no Communion (a strange provision, by the way, to insert after the prayer of Consecration). The edition of 1800 says "alms and oblations"; that of 1844, "oblations"; the two later editions, "alms and oblations." These variations show a confusion of thought on the subject; and perhaps the change in Bishop Seabury's office and in the present Scotch service is best explained by supposing that "alms" and "oblations" were considered as synonymous. The alms are called "oblations" in the services of 1637 and 1718 and in all the Scotch offices.

<sup>1</sup> Journal, p. 77.

<sup>2</sup> So Bp. Patrick, quoted by Trevor, Catholic Doctrine of the Eucharist, p. 419. Dr. Trevor considers this to be, not the "oblation primitiarum," but the sacramental oblation and of the same meaning as that which follows the words of Institution in the Scotch and American Offices. It seems impossible to believe that it was so intended by the English revisers. Bp. Patrick's words show that he had no such idea.

The commemoration of the departed is adopted, with considerable alterations, from that in the English book of 1549.

<sup>1</sup> See the "Direction" on the reverse of the title page.

Hall's reprint does not give the full text of the Lord's Prayer; but as the change of "which" into "who" is one for which, among others, America has been blamed, it may be worth while to notice that certain of the Scotch offices—one of them, that from which Bishop Seabury took his office—have the more modern use of the relative.<sup>1</sup>

The Private Ejaculations and Prayers seem to have been composed by Bishop Seabury. Bishop Drummond's edition of the Scotch book, which first appeared in 1796, has similar prayers, one of which bears a close resemblance to the "Prayer to God" in Bishop Seabury's office.

As to the form of the Gloria in Excelsis, Mr. Skinner has this note:

"Of this very ancient hymn we have two editions: one is found in the Apostolical Constitutions; the other is annexed to the Psalter of the Alexandrian Bible, presented by Lucan [Cyrillus Lucaris, Patriarch of Alexandria, and afterwards of Constantinople] to Charles I. [in 1628]. As there is good reason to believe that the Constitutions have been defaced and altered by the Arian party,<sup>2</sup> it seems more than probable that of the two copies the Alexandrian is the more genuine. When the first reformed Liturgy was published, the Alexandrian copy had not been discovered; but after its appearance

<sup>1</sup> Bp. Wren argued for "who" instead of "which" in the Lord's Prayer and elsewhere, calling the use of the latter "a very solecism." Fragmentary Illustrations, ed. Jacobson, p. 47.

<sup>2</sup> They were for some such reason rejected by the Quinisext Council (Act. Concil., ed. Hardouin, iii. 1659, A, B); compare Blunt's Dict. Doct. and Hist. Theol., sub voce, p. 149.

the compilers of the present Scotch office did well to profit by it."<sup>1</sup>

Following are translations of three Greek texts of the Gloria in Excelsis. The first is from the hymns at the end of the Psalter in the Alexandrian Manuscript, probably of the fifth century;<sup>2</sup> the second and the third are from different texts of the Apostolic Constitutions.<sup>3</sup>

The repetition of the clause "Thou that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us," first appears in English in the book of 1552,<sup>4</sup> and has been retained in the English books since. The Non-jurors also retained it in 1718; but it has been omitted from the Scotch office since 1755. The repetition, as will be seen from the note to the translation of the first text, is not quite without authority.

Attention has already been called to the fact that in the most essential part of the service—the prayer of Consecration—Stephens's second Liturgy, the Non-jurors' book, the Scotch services since 1755, Bishop Seabury's office, and the present American book differ from all

<sup>1</sup> Skinner, p. 169.

<sup>2</sup> The text is that of Grabe, tom. iv, Oxon., 1709. It may also be found at the end of Abp. Ussher's Treatise De Symbolis, Works, vii. 337.

<sup>3</sup> The text of the second is in Cotelierius (ed. Clerici, Antwerp, 1698), Book vii., c. 47; vol. i., p. 385. That of the third was introduced by Clericus into a note in the next edition of Cotelierius (1724) from a Vienna Ms.; but it is taken here from Daniel, Thesaur. Hymnolog., ii. 270, who speaks of the Ms. as "scriori tempore conscriptum." See also Bunsen, Hippolytus and his Age, trans., vol. ii., pp. 50, 51, 98, sqq., London, 1854.

<sup>4</sup> For a reason for the repetition, see Scudamore, Notit. Eucharist., first edition, p. 710.

Glory be to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will towards men. We praise thee, we sing to thee, we bless thee, we glorify thee, we worship thee through the great High-Priest, thee the very God, the one unbegotten, alone unapproachable, for thy great glory, O Lord heavenly King, God the Father Almighty, O Lord the only-begotten Son Jesus Christ, and O Holy Ghost. O Lord God, Lamb of God, Son of the Father, that takest away the sins of the world, receive our prayer, thou that sittest upon the Cherubim. For thou only art holy; thou only, Lord Jesus, Christ of the God of all art Christ, Jesus Christ, to the glory of God the Father.	Glory be to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will towards men. We praise thee, we sing to thee, we bless thee, we glorify thee, we worship thee through the great High-Priest, thee the very God, the one unbegotten, alone unapproachable, for thy great glory, O Lord heavenly King, God the Father Almighty. O Lord God, Father of Christ the spotless Lamb that taketh away the sin of the world, receive our prayer, thou that sittest upon the Cherubim. For thou only art holy; thou only, Lord Jesus, Christ of the God of all created nature who is our King; by whom to thee be glory, honor, and worship.	Glory be to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will towards men. We praise thee, we bless thee, we worship thee, we glorify thee, we give thanks to thee for thy great glory, O Lord heavenly King, God the Father Almighty, O Lord the only-begotten Son Jesus Christ, and O Holy Ghost. O Lord God, Lamb of God, Son of the Father, that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us; thou that takest away the sins of the world, receive our prayer; thou that sittest at the right hand of the Father, have mercy upon us. For thou only art holy; thou only art the Lord, Jesus Christ, to the glory of God the Father. Amen.
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

<sup>1</sup> A later hand has inserted here, "have mercy upon us."

other Communion-offices in the English language in placing the words of Institution, the Oblation, and the Invocation of the Holy Ghost, in the order in which they are to be found in all the ancient liturgies. It would be beyond the scope of this sketch to point out the doctrines involved in the different orders in which these parts of the Consecration Prayer have been—sometimes, it is to be feared, thoughtlessly—arranged.<sup>1</sup>

The Roman liturgy had placed the words of Institution in an abnormal position, after the Invocation and before the Oblation. This arrangement was followed in the first reformed book—that of 1549. In the next revision, in 1552, the Oblation was dropped altogether (perhaps from a conviction that it was out of place, and so taught false doctrine), and the Invocation was made strangely indefinite by the omission of all mention of the Holy Spirit. The English office still retains this form. The Non-jurors' book, taking the words of the Clementine liturgy, took also the primitive order; and the Scotch Bishops, in framing the services from which Bishop Seabury took the office here reproduced and to which we are indebted for our American Prayer of Consecration, though they used the words of the book of 1549, changed their order to agree with primitive custom. This should be carefully noted, because, as we have seen, it has been said inadvertently more than once that Bishop Seabury followed the first book of King

<sup>1</sup> It is sufficient to refer to Dr. Trevor on the Catholic Doctrine of the Holy Eucharist, passim. On the universality of the ancient order, see Brett, Dissertation, pp. 137, sqq.

Edward VI. in the changes which he introduced into the liturgy.<sup>1</sup>

The following table will be of interest as showing the variations in order which are shown by the different Communion-Offices in the English language. The several parts of the Scotch service and of that of Bishop Seabury are numbered in the order of their arrangement, and the numbers in the other columns refer to the parts of the service which bear those numbers respectively in the wide column. The first column on the left shows the primitive order of the six things which are found in all the old Liturgies and were considered essential; the second gives the arrangement when the Latin Mass was supplemented by an English Communion in 1548; the third shows how this arrangement passed over into the book of 1549; and the fourth contains the order in the proposed Scotch book of 1637, known as Archbishop Laud's. On the right of the wide column will be found the order of the present American and that of the present English Communion-Offices. The figures which denote the three essential parts of the Consecration-prayer are printed in bold type, that the variation in their order may be seen at a glance.

<sup>1</sup> Even Dr. Jarvis fell into this mistake. See A Voice from Conn., pp. 25, 26. Dr. Dix (Lectures on the Prayer-Book, p. 83) has made a similar error in saying that the book of 1637 "is still used in Scotland" and that it "gave us American Churchmen our own stately Canon."

Or Christ's summary of the Law, in Scotch offices.
Preceded by a Thanksgiving.
With summary of the Law, at discretion.
Followed by a Hymn.
Or some other Hymn.
Offertory only till 1662.
Possibly.
Lord's Prayer omitted in 1785.
Omitted in 1785.
Abridged in 1785.
Lord's Prayer, Collect, and Introit.
Preceded by an anthem.
Hymn, Collect, Antiphons, Introit, Priest's Confession, etc.
Followed by Anthem and Priest's Communion. Thus far the old Mass in Latin, the parts corresponding with the parts the English services having the like numbers. The English part of this service began with 5.
Corresponding to both 11 and 12; its position is variable. See Hammond, Liturgies Eastern and Western, Introit.
ters 1. and 11.
See Trevor, pp. 266, sqq.; also Brett's Dissertation.

17	17	18	18. Thanksgiving.	18	18
20	18 <sup>1</sup>	19	19. Gloria in Excelsis.	19	19
20	20	20	20. Blessing.	20	20

17	17	17	17. Administration.	17	17
16	15	16	16. Prayer of Humble Access.	16	17
14	14	13	15. Confession, Absolution, Comfortable Words.	14	11 <sup>d</sup>
5	5	11	14. Invitation.	13	10
13 <sup>n</sup>	11	9	13. Lord's Prayer.	11	9
11	9	8	12. Prayer for the Church.	9	8 <sup>b</sup>
10	8	10	11. Intercessions.	8	16
8	10	7	10. Invocation.	7	7
10 <sup>a</sup>	12	15	9. Oblation.	15	15
12	7	14	8. Words of Institution.	14	14
7	6	5	7. Sursum Corda and Trisagion.	5	5
6	5	12	6. Offertory and Presentation of Elements.	12	12
3	4	6	5. Exhortation.	6	6
2	3	4	4. Sermon.	4	4
19	2	3	3. Creed.	3	3
1 <sup>m</sup>	19	2	2. Collects, Epistle, Gospel.	2	2
1 <sup>k</sup>	1	1 <sup>c</sup>	1. Lord's Prayer, Collect, X. Commandments.	1 <sup>k</sup>	1 <sup>c</sup>

Order of	English,	Proposed	Scotch,	Scotch, 1755-1853.	Scotch, 1755-1853.
Communion,	1549.	1637.	1637.	Bishop Seabury's, 1786.	1786-1883.
1548.					American,
1785.					1789-1883.
1785.					Proposed
1785.					1785.

17	17	17	17. Administration.	17	17
16	15	16	16. Prayer of Humble Access.	16	17
14	14	13	15. Confession, Absolution, Comfortable Words.	14	11 <sup>d</sup>
5	5	11	14. Invitation.	13	10
13 <sup>n</sup>	11	9	13. Lord's Prayer.	11	9
11	9	8	12. Prayer for the Church.	9	8 <sup>b</sup>
10	8	10	11. Intercessions.	8	16
8	10	7	10. Invocation.	7	7
10 <sup>a</sup>	12	15	9. Oblation.	15	15
12	7	14	8. Words of Institution.	14	14
7	6	5	7. Sursum Corda and Trisagion.	5	5
6	5	12	6. Offertory and Presentation of Elements.	12	12
3	4	6	5. Exhortation.	6	6
2	3	4	4. Sermon.	4	4
19	2	3	3. Creed.	3	3
1 <sup>m</sup>	19	2	2. Collects, Epistle, Gospel.	2	2
1 <sup>k</sup>	1	1 <sup>c</sup>	1. Lord's Prayer, Collect, X. Commandments.	1 <sup>k</sup>	1 <sup>c</sup>

Order of	English,	Proposed	Scotch,	Scotch, 1755-1853.	Scotch, 1755-1853.
Communion,	1549.	1637.	1637.	Bishop Seabury's, 1786.	1786-1883.
1548.					American,
1785.					1789-1883.
1785.					Proposed
1785.					1785.

musical colon in each verse, as in the English Prayer-Book. In the Psalter, the Latin titles are omitted, and, besides a few other changes of words, there is a substitution of a future tense for the imperative mood in passages which might be called "damnatory"; thus, Psalm v. 11 reads, "Thou wilt destroy them, O God; they shall perish through their own imaginations: thou wilt cast them out in the multitude of their ungodliness; for they have rebelled against thee."

Bishop Seabury's reasons for making the changes in the Psalter are given in the preface, which is in the following words:

ADVERTISEMENT.

It is remarked by the learned and pious Dr. Horne, the late Bishop of Norwich, in the preface to his commentary on the psalms, p. 53. That "the offence taken at the supposed uncharitable and vindictive spirit of the imprecations, which occur in some of the psalms, ceases immediately, if we change the imperative for the future, and read, not Let them be confounded, &c.: but, They shall be confounded &c. of which the Hebrew is equally capable. Such passages will then have no more difficulty in them than the other frequent predictions of divine vengeance in the writings of the prophets, or denunciations of it in the gospel, intended to warn, to alarm, and to lead sinners to repentance, that they may fly from the wrath to come."

The same observation was formerly made by Dr. Hammond in his preface to his commentary on the psalms, p. 32. Supported by the authority of men so eminent for their abilities, learning, and piety, the following edition of the psalter is published with the alterations they have recommended, the imperative mood being changed for the future tense, in all the imprecations which occurred in the psalms. Besides which a few old words are changed for those which are more modern, and two or three expressions hard to be understood, are altered, still retaining the spirit and meaning of the psalm.

APPENDIX.

The writer is indebted to the kindness of Charles J. Hoadly, M.A., Librarian of the State of Connecticut, for the loan, from his private collection, of another volume of a liturgical character which was published by Bishop Seabury, and for permission to print a description of the book in this place.

It is a 12mo volume, of fifteen sheets, not paged, with the following title-page: The | Psalter | or | Psalms | of | David, | Pointed as they are to be sung or said in | Churches. | — | With the Order for Morning and Evening | Prayer Daily throughout the Year. | — | New London: | Printed by Thomas C. Green, on the parade. | 1795. |

The contents are as follow: Morning Prayer; Evening Prayer [so much as is not in Morning Prayer]; The Creed of St. Athanasius; The Litany; Prayers; Thanksgivings; A Catechism; The Psalter: or, Psalms of David.

The services are those of the American Prayer-Book, except, of course, the Athanasian Creed, which is taken from the English Book. The rubrics are omitted, but the different prayers and other parts of the services have the proper headings prefixed. Before the versicles, the word "Minister" is replaced by "Priest," except in the Litany; and the Canticles and Psalter have the

By these means, it is hoped, the psalms will be freed from all objections, and used with more devotion as a part of divine service.

SAMUEL,

Bishop of Connecticut and Rhode Island.

New London,

Jan. 16th, 1795.

Bishop White tells us that the House of Bishops, in 1789, did not approve of the "Selections of Psalms" which were then prepared and allowed to be used instead of the portions of the Psalter. "But Bishop Seabury," he adds, "interested himself in the subject the less, as knowing that neither himself nor any of his clergy would make use of the alternative, but that they would adhere to the old practice."<sup>1</sup> It would seem that the objections to the use of the "damnatory clauses" were pressed more strongly upon Bishop Seabury's attention after the new Prayer-Book had come into use, and that he adopted this method of obviating them. In fact, if tradition may be trusted, his special design in setting forth this revision of the Psalms was to quiet the mind of an influential member of his congregation, who was a relative of his.

The number of passages in which the imperative is thus replaced by the future is ninety-seven. In a few cases, as Ps. vii. 9, xciv. 2, no change has been made. In fifty-four instances, which seem to be all the occurrences of the possessive case, the apostrophe which belongs to that case is omitted; and in four of these a plural form is substituted for the singular, as in "mercies" for "mercy's." These methods of writing the possessive are found in the standard English Book [ed. Stephens, 1849]. The apostrophe is used eleven times in such words as "thro'," "bro't," etc. There are many evident misprints, as "heart" for "hart" in xlii. 1, "help" for "held" in xciv. 18, "turned" for "tuned" in cl. 5; but certain spellings seem to have been purposely adopted, such as "doth" (for "doeth"), "dost" (for "doest"), "wholsom," "hony," "roing," "thy self" (two words), "rejoyce," "shew," "Cherubims," etc. Some of these are found in the English standard.

<sup>1</sup> Memoirs, p. 152.

Following is a list of all the passages which show changes in words from the Psalter of the American Prayer-Book, other than those in the damnatory clauses mentioned above. Words and phrases marked with a * are taken from the English Book; those marked with a † are taken from Bishop Horne's Commentary.

Ps. iii. 2: "Many there are that say."

iv. 6 and v. 5: "are" (for "be").

x. 17: "thou wilt visit his ungodliness, till thou find none."

xviii. 2: "who" (for "which").

xix. 11: "keeping them" (for "keeping of them").

xxix. 8: "The voice of the Lord maketh the oaks to tremble, and layeth open the thick forests."†

xxx. 6: "hadst" (for "hast"; so in old English book).

xli. 5: "speak evil of me and say."

xli. 7: "imagine this evil, saying."

xlii. 6: "disquieted" (for "so disquieted").*

xlii. 10: "on" (for "in").*

xlvi. 9: "snappeth" (for "knappeth").

xlix. 5: "the wickedness of my enemies."†

xlix. 10: "others" (for "other"); so lxxiii. 8.

xlix. 14: "they lie in the grave like sheep."

xlix. 14: "shall have domination."*

xlix. 15: "from the place of the grave."

lv. 9: "Defeat their councils, O Lord."†

- Ps. lv. 21: "such as were at peace."
 lvi. 8: "Thou tellest my flittings."
 lxiii. 5: "on this manner."
 lxvii. 5: omit "yea."
 lxxviii. 13: "lien" (for "lain").
 lxxii. 16: "He shall be like a field of corn on the earth."
 lxxiii. 26: "wilt destroy" (for "hast destroyed").
 lxxiv. 14: "breakest" (for "brakest").
 lxxvi. 1: "Jury" (for "Jewry").
 lxxvi. 10, 12: "restrain" (for "refrain").
 lxxvii. 6: "spirits" (for "spirit").
 lxxx. 1: "ye" (for "we").
 lxxxiii. 6: "Hagarens."
 lxxxiii. 7: "Amalech."
 xciv. 4: "all the wicked doers."
 xciv. 20: "Wilt thou have anything to do with the throne of wickedness: which establisheth iniquity by a law?"
 xcix. 1: "never so impatient."
 c. 1: "O be joyful" (for "O be ye joyful").
 cii. 20: "mournings" (for "mourning").
 civ. 11: "all beasts" (for "all the beasts").
 cxvi. 10: "I said in my haste, there is no help in man."
 cxlviii. 2: "host" (for "hosts").

"Judah" is thus spelt but once, and it appears seven times as "Juda." In the standard English book, it is found four times with "h," and four times without it.

As to the publication of the Athanasian Creed in this service book, it is very probable that it was not intended to be read in the service. This Creed had been omitted from the book proposed in 1785, and the majority of the members of the Convention were determined not to restore it.<sup>1</sup> When the revision of 1789 was in progress, the matter was discussed again; and Bishop White says in regard to it:

<sup>1</sup> Bishop White's Memoirs, pp. 117, 118.

"The author consented to the proposal of Bishop Seabury, of making it [the Athanasian Creed] an amendment to the draft sent by the other house; to be inserted with a rubric permitting the use of it. This, however, was declared to be on the principle of accommodation to the many who were reported to desire it, especially in Connecticut; where, it was said, the omitting of it would hazard the reception of the book. It was the author's intention never to read the creed himself; and he declared his mind to that effect. Bishop Seabury, on the contrary, thought that without it there would be a difficulty in keeping out of the church the errors to which it stands opposed.....The creed was inserted by way of amendment, to be used or omitted at discretion. But the amendment was negatived by the other house; and when the subject afterwards came up in conference, they would not allow of the creed in any shape; which was thought intolerant by the gentlemen from New England, who, with Bishop Seabury, gave it up with great reluctance."

Bishop Seabury's intention in pleading for the permissory use of the Creed is shown in a letter written by him December 29th, 1790, to the Rev. Dr. Parker:

"With regard to the propriety of reading the Athanasian Creed, I never was fully convinced. With regard to the impropriety of banishing it out of the Prayer Book, I am clear; and I look upon it, that those gentlemen who rigidly insisted upon its being read as usual, and those who insisted on its being thrown out, both acted from the same uncandid, uncompromising temper. They seem to me to have aimed at forcing their own opinion on their brethren. And I do hope, though possibly I hope in vain, that Christian charity and love of union will some time bring that Creed into this book, were it only to stand as articles of faith stand, and to show that we do not renounce the Catholic doctrine of the Trinity as held by the Western Church."<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Ibid., pp. 149, 150.

Whether the amended Psalter and the Athanasian Creed were used in St. James's Church, New London, or elsewhere, can probably never be determined; but the fact that the first Bishop of Connecticut prepared and published this volume cannot cease to be one of the most interesting facts in the early history of the Prayer-Book of the American Church.

---

<sup>1</sup> Bishop Perry's Handbook of the General Convention, p. 76.

*Dr. Beardsley, with the original
the Editor.*

